Proposed as a natural reserve to UNESCO considering it's one of the most diverse diving areas in the Sultanate of Oman, Al Hallaniyat Islands is not only a premier diving destination but a sanctuary of natural wonders.

Located 40 to 70 kilometers south of Dhofar, these islands boast stunning bays cradled by rugged cliffs, providing a home for many wild vulnerable & endangered species both above and below the surface. The islands stand as one of the world's most critical nesting areas for Loggerhead turtles

Archaeological discoveries, including tombs, houses, and stores, reveal a rich pre-Islamic history, inviting exploration into the island's past.

With a population of less than 300, the island fosters a unique coexistence between humans and nature, where life unfolds in a delicate balance.

This remote haven presents an ecosystem that remains in its original, pristine state, a rare glimpse into a world untouched by modern disruption, making Hallaniyat Islands an unparalleled opportunity to witness nature's majesty and historical depth.

We warmly welcome you to join us in this exceptional experience❤️
